Core acknowledges Traditional Owners of Country throughout Australia and recognises the continuing connection to lands, waters and communities.

We pay our respect to Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander cultures; and to Elders past, present and emerging.

The artwork.

Rooted in Rhythm by Aretha Brown

Rooted in Rhythm is a vibrant, green-focused artwork that reflects the deep connection between plants, people, and Country.

Created as a visual expression of a Reconciliation Action Plan (RAP), the piece represents growth, healing, and unity. Flourishing plant forms blend with abstract symbols of community circles, pathways, and gathering places that speak to connection and collective purpose.

Green, representing life and renewal, flows throughout the work, highlighting themes of sustainability, cultural respect, and regeneration.

This piece acknowledges the enduring wisdom of First Nations peoples and the strength found in coming together to nurture a future grounded in mutual respect and understanding.

A statement from Karen Mundine Reconciliation Australia.

Karen Mundine

Chief Executive Officer
Reconciliation Australia

Reconciliation Australia welcomes Core Projects to the Reconciliation Action Plan (RAP) program with the formal endorsement of its inaugural Reflect RAP.

Core Projects joins a network of more than 2,200 corporate, government, and not-for-profit organisations that have made a formal commitment to reconciliation through the RAP program.

Since 2006, RAPs have provided a framework for organisations to leverage their structures and diverse spheres of influence to support the national reconciliation movement. The program's potential for impact is greater than ever, with close to 3 million people now working or studying in an organisation with a RAP.

The four RAP types — Reflect, Innovate, Stretch and Elevate — allow RAP partners to continuously develop and strengthen reconciliation commitments in new ways. This Reflect RAP will lay the foundations, priming the workplace for future RAPs and reconciliation initiatives.

The RAP program's strength is its framework of relationships, respect, and opportunities, allowing an organisation to strategically set its reconciliation commitments in line with its own business objectives, for the most effective outcomes.

These outcomes contribute towards the five dimensions of reconciliation: race relations; equality and equity; institutional integrity; unity; and historical acceptance.

It is critical to not only uphold all five dimensions of reconciliation, but also increase awareness of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander cultures, histories, knowledge, and leadership across all sectors of Australian society.

This Reflect RAP enables Core Projects to deepen its understanding of its sphere of influence and the unique contribution it can make to lead progress across the five dimensions. Getting these first steps right will ensure the sustainability of future RAPs and reconciliation initiatives, and provide meaningful impact toward Australia's reconciliation journey.

Congratulations Core Projects, welcome to the RAP program, and I look forward to following your reconciliation journey in the years to come.

Our vision for Reconciliation.

At Core our aim is to build a culture where all team members can bring their whole selves to work. A culture that sees our differences as an opportunity for innovation and creativity. Our diversity not only creates an environment where our team members feel welcomed and supported but the inclusion of diverse viewpoints helps drive excellence in all we do.

The ultimate goal that our organisation envisages for reconciliation is a society where Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples have equal opportunity to succeed. We believe this starts with acknowledgement of historical and current injustices and a commitment to address the lasting impacts of these injustices. More than acknowledgment, at Core we are committed through our purpose and business goals to being agents of change. Using our business and all of its touchpoints as a force for good.

In the context of our organisation, reconciliation looks like Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples maintaining their connection with community, land and water throughout the development of Country.

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples have profound connections with their communities that are rooted in millennia of shared history, culture and traditions. Here at Core, we respect and understand that within these communities there exists rich histories of kinship, storytelling and practices that serve to maintain their connection to Country. We acknowledge that we work and have influence within the new community development space and respect the importance of community within the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander cultures.

A message from our CEOs.

‘Reconciliation to me means that I can honestly believe that First Nations kids will have the same opportunities as my kids. That First Nations peoples can be seen and respected and have their histories and stories appreciated. That First Nations peoples can also be seen as individuals, that can have aspirations and access to opportunities the same way I do. Reconciliation also means acknowledging the reasons these things aren’t a reality for First Nations peoples today, and taking accountability for the actions that are within our control to change this.

Reconciliation to me is the genuine want for things to be better for First Nations peoples and taking the action I can to make that happen.

Being a business that works in the new communities and property space, means that we are constantly thinking about people and place. So for us, acknowledging First Nations peoples and their ongoing connection and contribution to place and community is something that’s always been important. Through our RAP we want to formalise our commitment to ensuring that we take meaningful and impactful steps to support and empower First Nations peoples, demonstrating our commitment to social justice and equality. Through our RAP we want to listen, understand, respect and become allies of First Nations peoples, to help create the future they want for their people and communities.’

– Nicki Hay, Co-CEO

About our business.

We're Core – a land advisory, sales, and marketing specialist. From selling and renting properties to growing communities, we provide a wide range of real estate services, and all with creativity, commitment, and care.

Since 2015, we've been a culture-driven, people-driven organisation and a certified a B-Corp. We have grown incredibly in the last few years and now have over 60 team members!

Our head office is in South Melbourne, with a secondary office in Geelong and 11 sales offices across townhouse and land development sites in metropolitan Melbourne and regional Victoria. Whilst our activities have been focused largely in Victoria we are spreading our wings slowly into NSW and Western Australia. We have wide networks through the property industry in both the public and private sector and have always endeavoured to extend our learning and vision beyond our immediate team.

We were acknowledged by the Urban Development Institute of Australia as a Leader in Diversity in 2021 and rather than just recognition, we've always considered this a meaningful platform to share our knowledge and encourages others to think about their business 'impact' across our industry.

We offer our learnings and insights freely to our project partners including developers, consultants and a range of professional services. Using our website and social media platforms, we seek to share our efforts in educating our business on reconciliation and why it's important to us. This is an important part of starting broader conversations around reconciliation across our industry. We are committed to our Purpose, to balance people, profit and planet, and deeply consider our impact on the land and the people in it.

Our organisation currently has no known staff who identify as Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander people. However, we are committed to creating a culturally safe and inclusive workplace where First Nations peoples have meaningful opportunities to build their careers and thrive. As part of this commitment, we will be reviewing and strengthening the cultural safety of our hiring practices to improve access to employment and long-term career pathways.

Our Reconciliation Action Plan.

We are genuinely committed to People and Land; creating a synergy between what we do at Core and the land and people of Australia.

We recognise that nobody embodies the connection between People and Land better than Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples.

We have a lot to learn, and we want to extend ourselves, our people and the impact of our business and work to make a positive difference for everyone.

Committing to an Innovate RAP is one way that we can take meaningful action to advance reconciliation. Whilst we acknowledge that improvements have been made and we have strengthened our relationships with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, there is a lot of work still to be done. Throughout the period of our Reflect RAP we were faced with several challenges and lessons.

In particular, we found it challenging to engage meaningfully with Communities as reconciliation efforts could sometimes be seen as superficial or tokenistic, failing to provide tangible benefits. For us, successful reconciliation looks like meaningful engagement and ensuring the engagement has a purpose. Additionally, integrating reconciliation into our everyday business practice rather than treating it as a separate body felt challenging.

As a business, we tried to embed reconciliation into our business practices, policies and values through long-term strategic planning. Since developing our first RAP, we have identified external stakeholders and suppliers that our organisation can engage with and support on our reconciliation journey. We will continue to engage with these groups throughout our Innovate RAP.

Some of our achievements.

Introduced Traditional Place Country onto Signatures

In 2023 we added the Traditional Place names to our head office and land sales office addresses on our employee’s email signatures to acknowledge Country and to celebrate the diverse landscape we live and work on. Additionally, our email signatures include an Acknowledgement of Country and we continue to encourage our team members to deliver an Acknowledge of Country when presenting at major internal and external events.

Improved Cultural Awareness

As part of our commitment to reconciliation, we acknowledged National Reconciliation Week by welcoming Wurundjeri Traditional Owners to deliver a Welcome to Country and Smoking Ceremony. Additionally, we provided and shared resources throughout National Reconciliation Week and NAIDOC week, as well as encouraged team members to attend local events. Lastly, all team members were and continuously will be given the option to substitute the January 26 National Public Holiday with a different day as per the National Employment Standards. Resources are also shared to help team members educate themselves on the history and significance of this date.

Purchased Carbon Offsets from the Aboriginal Carbon Foundation

Recently we purchased carbon offsets from the Aboriginal Carbon Foundation (AbCF) for future years which will help deliver our FY25 & FY26 Climate Active Commitment. AbCF is a 100% Aboriginal owned not-for profit organisation established in 2010 to create economic independence for First Nations peoples through a variety of innovative solutions, including carbon farming opportunities and cultural fire credits.

Voice to Parliament

In late 2023 a mandatory information session about the referendum on ‘The Voice’ was hosted by Simon Thomas – a barrister with experience in elections-related work with the United Nations. The purpose of the information session was to be independent and not political, but rather to provide information to employees to make their own informed decision regarding the referendum.

Engaged with The Torch

We partnered with The Torch, a not-for profit who have been providing art, cultural and arts industry support to First Nations offenders and ex-offenders in Victoria since 2011 through its Indigenous Arts in Prisons and Community program, to license the use of an image for our reflect RAP.

Kinship Care

In early 2024, internal frameworks were amended to recognise and provide allowances for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples kinship care needs.

Our Reconciliation Action Plan Team.

Lastly, in early 2024, we renewed our RAP Working Group to ensure it included all levels of seniority and team members from different departments.

Our commitment: Relationships

Since 2015, we've been a culture-driven, people-driven organisation. You'll find at Core that we do things differently. For starters – we care. We care about our clients. We care about our people. We care about the communities we're helping to create – and the families who will call those places home.

We consider every new Core project for how it can make a positive difference through the following six key areas:

- Communities
- Housing affordability
- Diversity and inclusion
- Wellbeing, health and safety
- Nature and land use
- Climate change

This ensures residential communities we help create are accessible, inclusive, safe, resilient and sustainable. Our goal is to create a sense of community within every new development we help bring to market.

Our Innovate RAP will strengthen our already strong relationships established with stakeholders and organisations that were developed whilst delivering our Reflect RAP. We will continue to work with these groups as well as develop new relationships with other Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander businesses.

Our commitment: Relationships.

‘Reconciliation to me is about our relationship with the First Nations communities and understanding our role as a business in strengthening that relationship and how we can improve. Working in property, we have a direct influence on the land but often don’t understand the histories or cultures behind the Aboriginal community that were the original owners. It became clear, that we can do a lot more within our business to better understand Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander cultures through training and working closely with communities.

The progress we’ve made is an exciting step forward and I’m looking forward to continuing on the journey of reconciliation.’

– Claudia Facy, Junior Project Manager

‘Reconciliation means creating a strong understanding and relationship between First Nations peoples and non-Indigenous people. This can be done through teachings around the First Nations people’s cultures and histories. By understanding the journey that First Nations peoples of Australia have gone through is the foundation to create these relationships.
